

Non-commutative discrete optimization

Prof. Alexei Miasnikov
(Stevens Institute of Technology, NJ)

Date: Tuesday, 23 April 2013

Time: 1545-1645

Location: Chauvenet 110

Abstract: I will describe a new area of research, coined “non-commutative discrete optimization”. The main idea here is to consider the classical discrete optimization problems in the most general form—in the context of non-commutative groups. I will focus on why these problems are interesting and important, mention some results, surprises, and applications, and touch on perspectives.